

The Economy of Mainland Tanzania Into the 2000s: Productivity, Human Capital, and other Leading Issues¹.

Delphin Rwegasira, Ammon Mbelle, Jehovaness Aikaeli 2016

This volume contains the main contributions to a Symposium on Development, held in 2012, that was jointly organized by the Mwalimu Julius Nyerere Professorial Chair in Development and the Department of Economics, both of the University of Dar es Salaam.

Key developmental issues were identified to be addressed in prepared papers for a forward looking Symposium, given Tanzania's the symposium principally dwelt on critical elements in the drive towards a shifted development ambition for Tanzania, consistent with the significantly higher growth rates envisaged under the country's Development Vision 2025. The essential substance of the papers in this volume, remain highly pertinent to the country's future development. They are, therefore, published as a contribution to the on-going development debate and consultations as well as stakeholders' concerns and reflections on steering Tanzania's future. Needless to mention, however, that the various analyses and views presented at the Symposium should be interpreted as personal to the contributors and not necessarily reflecting those of institutions with which they may be associated.

The Mwalimu Julius Nyerere Chair in Development and the Department of Economics, through the University of Dar es Salaam, together with the Symposium participants are indeed grateful to the President of the United Republic of Tanzania, Dr. Jakaya Mrisho Kikwete, who not only opened the Symposium but also actively participated in its early proceedings, underscoring the essence and direction of the Symposium. The organizers are also deeply grateful to the President's Office, Planning Commission, and the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) for facilitating the holding of the Symposium and supporting this publication of proceedings. The Symposium organizers and the Editors of this volume are as well particularly appreciative of the efforts of Ms. Innocensia John, a PhD student in the Department of Economics, for her long standing support to the Mwalimu Nyerere Chair in Development, as Assistant to the Chair, and for her efficient coordination of the Symposium preparations.

¹ Published by Dar es Salaam University Press

Table of Content

Chapter one

The Development Context and Organisation of the Book

Delphin G. Rwegasira

Chapter Two

The Political Economy of Growth and Distribution Experience in the First Decade of the 2000s

Adolf F. Mkenda, Eliab G. Luvanda and Remidius Ruihinduka

Chapter Three

Challenges of Preserving Macroeconomic Stability

Jehovaness Aikaeli, Delphin Rwegasira and Nicas Yabu

Chapter Four

Productivity Trends in The Economy

Ammon V.Y. Mbelle and Razak Lokina

Chapter Five

A Strategic Approach to Education and Skills Growth: Quantity, Quality, Costs, and Developmental Dividends

Kahyarara, Godius and Kirama, Stephen L.

Chapter Six

Agricultural Modernization and Productivity Enhancement

Lucian Msambichaka, John Mduma, Onesmo Selejio, Innocent Karamagi, Robert Mabele and Oswald Mashindano

Chapter Seven

Enhancing Capacity and Instruments for Maximizing Gains from Mineral Resources The Case of Gold

Semboja, Haji Hatibu and Hepelwa, Aloyce

Chapter Eight

A Fiscal Regime for Natural Gas

Thomas Baunsgaard